We All Want,

Well, let me tell you, I think this past week was the most exciting we've had here at WXDU since we went FM four years ago. On Tuesday, we celebrated the year in progressive music with our countdown of the Top 100 Albums In College Radio for 1986. This marathon feature took just over nine hours to complete, and man, was it a blast! I was a little nervous at first; I didn't know if folks would pick up on what we were doing--whether all the work that went into planning for the countdown was to prove worthwhile(For one thing, I had risked my life climbing on top of the student union to hang a banner promoting the show). The PD, Brian Levy and I started things off at 3PM, and we were soon joined by some more DJs and a case of Dos Equis. Things got a lot better after that. It was just plain the epitome of a real cool time--a bunch of us jocks sitting around, sipping some brews, playing the best albums of the year, with lots of people listening. About half way through the show, we realized we had a good thing going. We were giving away the extra promos we had lying around the station and asking people to call us and tell us what their favorite album of the year was, and it got to the point we you'd say "giveaway" or "Tell us what..." and both of our phone lines would light up instantaneously. And the music just got better and better, until finally we reached the penultimate moment. It was time to play the cut from the #1 album of the year: "Superman" by REM(our Top 100 list was a composite of the CMJ and RRockpool lists). We wrapped things up in a big way with a sweet giveaway: listener's pick of ten albums from the Top 100. We hoped we could get enough callers to give it to our frequency, 88.7(e.g. the 89th caller); we ended up getting close to 150 calls. Blew me away. A few people have told me they were walking around their dorms that night and it was like everyone on the hall had their radios tuned to us. It was like the whole campus was listening. That was the idea.

And then... on Thursday, thanks to Sarah Reichman(Promo Director here at WXDU, will the depths of this woman's connections ever be fathomed?), Peter Zaremba of the Fleshtones and David Faulkner of the Hoodoo Gurus stopped in to chat before their show that night at Page Auditorium on campus. Nice guys, those. To bad the show had to compete with the Duke-Carolina basketball game.

And then... on Friday, I found out I get to be MD again next year. By default. No one else applied for the position. Maybe it was because I've been doing a great job(though some "reach out and touch someone" reps may think differently), or maybe it's because folks realized being MD means kissing your GPA goodbye.

Just What We Can't Have,

Bryce

P.S.: Chris Calloway, who used to coordinate our Coffeehouse Concerts, is no longer with us. All inquiries regarding on-campus booking should be directed solely to Sarah Reichman.

P.P.S.: No, he didn't die.
